SENATE CLOSURE PROPOSITIONS.

After some unimportant routine business Mr. Hill offered two amendments to the rules and asked their reference to the Committee on Rules. The first was:

"Resolved, That Sub-division 2 of Rule 5 of the Standing Rules of the Senate be hereby amended so as to read as follows:

If at any time during the daily sessions of the Senate a question shall be raised by any senator as to the presence of a quorum the presiding officer shall forthwith direct the secretary to call the roll and shall announce the result, and these proceedings shall be without debate; but no senator white speaking shall be interrupted by another senator raising the question of the lack of a quorum, and the question as to the presence of a quorum shall not be raised ofteper than once in every hour; but this provision shall not nevery hour; but this provision shall not shall not be raised ofteper than once in every hour; but this provision shall not shall not apply where the absence of a quorum is disclosed upon any roll-call of the yeas and nays."

The second amendment was as follows:

Mr. Turple created somewhat of a stir by objecting to the reading of the resolution. He was apparently actuated by a feeling of retaliation, for he stated that he objected because when he introduced a resolution yesterday its consideration was objected to by the senator from Massachusetts. He wished to maintain, he declared, the parity of senatorial courtesy. Mr. Hoar replied that he had good reasons for the objection he made. He would do anything, he said, short of going down on his knees to the senator from Indiana, or acting unworthy of his manhood. It was not a personal memorial which he introduced or one affecting his constituents, but one affecting 20,000 people who were in a helpless and starving condition.

Mr. Turple was obdurate, however, and refused to withdraw his objection, but Mr. Cockrell suggested that the resolution had the right to he read one in solite of ob-Tossed Into the Virginia Camp by President Cleveland.

HOGE'S APPOINTMENT REVOKED

And Yet the Colonel is Now Probably Er Voyage for Amoy-How Our Congress

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, November 1.-President Cockrell suggested that the resolution had THE SEA ISLAND DISTRESS.

Mr. Butler rose and spoke feelingly of the condition of affairs in South Carolina, which State he represented. Miss Barton had gone to South Carolina at his invitation and the invitation of the Governor of the State, and they together had made officially sent a telegram to Colonel J. as it had been determined to cancel his appointment. As nothing has been heard appointment. As nothing has been neard from Colonel Hoge, the presumption is that he sailed from that port before the telegraphic communication reached him. Colonel Hoge did not come to Washington when he left Virginia several weeks ago to start for his post of duty, but went first to Chicago to see the World's Fair, and then took a train for San Francisco, and he is probably now sailing the Paa tour of the devestated district, and the distress and suffering were even greater than had been reported. Mr. Turple stated that he would withdraw his objection to the reading of the memorial resolution. It was then read.
The Senate then took up the discussion of the Chinese bill and was addressed by Messrs. Gray, Palmer, Perkins. Jolph.

adjourned without action on the bill, first

It is understood that some cames according to those have been making representations to the President and Secretary of State, and the former is said to have become so prejudiced in the case that he determined upon revoking the appoint-

Representative Edmunds, when informed to-day of the action of the President, made his arrangements for an interview with him, and he will be accompanied by Representative Marshail, as they are the gentlemen Mr. Cleveland expressed a desire to consult with. Mr. Edmunds was much surprised at the furn of events, and naturally will ask the President to give the names of the people who appear to have influenced him in revoking the appointment of Colonel Hoge.

SILVER REPEAL VOTE.

The Virginia and North Carolina dele-gations in the House to-day voted prac-tically as they voted in August on the un-conditional-repeal bill; that is, the great for the part he thinks he took in bringing about the result, paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Cleveland. Somehow not more than twelve or fifteen Democrats applauded, which seemed to be a keen disappointment to the Albany congressman. Of course the President had more friends and admirers in the House, but most of them had become disgusted with General Tracey's attempt to boom himself and they failed to respond. Just as the faint applause subsided Mr. Wilson, of Washington, sang out in a shrill, if not musical 10,200. The debt bearing no interest in-creased $56,617.50, and the cash in the Treasury decreased $4.581,341.

The amount of certificates and Trea-sury notes offset by equal amounts of cash in the Treasury, but outstanding at the end of the month, was $587,609,957, an increase of $17,384,68.

The total cash in the Treasury $729,447.

In the month there was a decrease in gold coin and bars of $0,25,559, the total at the close being $183,274,171. Or silver there was an increase of $1.26,375. Of the surplus there was in national bank depositories $20,421,870, against $17,213,278 at the end of the previous month.

gressman Tucker's friends will press his name, and ex-Congressman Buchanan will have strong friends in the delegation.

Senator Hunton called on the President to-day and, it is understood, strongly urged the appointment of Judge Keith. This gentleman has many other supporters, and is also personally well acquainted with Mr. Cleveland.

THE KOPE ELIAS CASE.

It is understood that the Senate will not act on the nomination of Kope Elias, to be Collector of Internal Revenue for the Western District of North Carolina, and under the rules of that body, if it adjourns without action, his nomination no longer remains on the books. Then it will remain with the President whether or not Mr. Elias shall again be appointed. There is considerable talk here to the effect that some of the strongest backers of Elias have abandoned him in order to save Simmons, nominated to be Collector in the other North Carolina district, and ATLANTA, GA., November 1.—Edward McCandless, Marshal of this city, was in-

McCandless is also charged with having conspired with Redwine to fool National Bank Examiner Campbell. Redwine palmed off some $5,000 twice on Campbell, and thus hid a shortage which existed in the bank. McCandless gave bond. PATTERSON AT ACCOMAC.

Congressman Patterson, of Tennessee, got the Lees mixed in stating yesterday that General Fitz Lee spoke on Monday at Accomac Courthouse. It was Major Baker P. The Virginians here regret very much that the Judge would not permit a meeting to be held in the court-house, as Colonel Patterson had made a tedious trip to appear before the Accomac people, and is a stumpier of great vigor and force.

The prisoner was taken to Dupres and tried by Justices Boothe and Crafton, and after a day spent in looking up witnesses he waived the trial by the Justice and was sent on to jail. It being night Constable Crutcher was ordered to take the prisoner to his house, which was on the way to the court-house, under the guard of three men, Messrs. Hamilton, Driggs, and Haynie. They arrived safely at Crutcher's house without any sign of disturbance.

It was a thoroughly organized crowd, every one knew his place, and in less than a minute everything was as quiet as before the mob came. One of the guards when asked the number replied: "Don't know; they came into the light whe men coming up out of the ground and disappeared in like manner." This morning the body was found by a negro on Crutcher's place swinging from a tree, white with frost. A coroner's inquest was held and the verdict was, "Redmond came to his death by the hands of a mob of unknown men."

FULL OF FOUL DEEDS. His life was full of deeds of the black est hue, with but few good ones to counest hue, with but few good ones to counteract the bad. The community was in a state of terror while he lived. Every one feared his fiendish ways, and no one knew when he would become his victim. Punishment seemed to have no effect on him. He would come back from prison as soon as his stripes were off and would return to his flendish ways. No one felt safe around him. If a cow or a horse crossed his place he would often shoot it down. Redmond was a man of means, and his whole fortune was spent in paying lawyers. This man's bad career began when he was but a boy. Some hot words passed between him and his old father. Shortly afterwards the old man was walking along with his gun on his shoulder, when he was suddenly shot dead by Abb from behind the corner of a fence. With the aid of the ablest lawyers this was proven to be in self-defence. A NEGRO MISSING.

A NEGRO MISSING. A NEGRO MISSING.

Later a negro was missing, and after a short time his body was ploughed up. This was proven to be the work of Redmond, and with the aid of the ablest lawyers in the State he got off with a few years in prison. Then came the burning of the house of one of our best citizens. Redmond confessed to the burning, but mond confessed to the burning, but through technicalities proved that it was his own house. Shortly after this the same man had a number of his barns burned. Later a neighbor had a few words with Redmond, and in a day or two four of his horses were poisoned. An old negro was cut almost to death by Redmond, and for this crime he got two years in prison. When he came back he professed religion, joined the church, and pretended to lead a new life, but no sooner were his disabilities removed than he went back to his old ways. He had a way of putting his neighbor's hogs into his field and killing them, along with his his field and killing them, along with his own, and every one was too much afraid of him to attempt to regain them. These are but a few of his many crimes. This morning, while but few think his last deeds justified death, alf agree it is a good thing to be clear of such a character. Many of the old citizens say that now they can live in peace, a thing not known to them for years. While all good citizens deplore the horrible deed, yet all admit that it is a happy riddance.

unexpected pleasure in the form of a speech from Colonel Charles T. O Ferrall, their candidate for Governor.

Up to yesterday it seemed that there would be no speech-making whatever in this city during the campaign, and this had produced a bad effect upon some of the voters, who did not appear to understand it, except as in ominous sign.

Upon very short notice a fine audience, composed of representative Democrats, gathered in Library Hall to-night and applauded the Colonel's vigorous and eloquent utterances to the echo.

The Colonel was introduced by Mr. W. H. McRae, one of the nominees from this city for the lower branch of the Legislature.

The distinguished congression and acceptance of Governor then delivered an exceedingly happy and effective speech, in which he blistered the Populists, who, he said, were the only political organization which the Democrats had to fight in this cam-which convulsed the house with laughter. He said that he had no apologies to make for voting for the repeal of the Sherman act, and he predicted an era of great prosperity following the panic which had recently caused such suffering.

He was wildly applauded for his statement that when he was elected Governor he would never permit a needy Confederate soldier, or the widow of one, to go to the almshouse He excertated Boutelle and the Shermans, argued in favor of tariff reform, paid a high tribute to the efficiency of Governor McKinney's administration, and predicted a glorious victory next Tuesday. The Colonel's speech created considerable enthusiasm, and will have a good effect on the voters of this

NEWMARKET, VA., November 1.—
General Fitzhugh Lee addressed one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences ever assembled in Polytechnic Hall here to-night. He was met at the depot by a delegation, and driven to the residence of L. P. Henkel, where he was serenaded by the Lee Cornet-band. Many ladies graced the audience and bands of music enlivened the occasion.

County Chairman J. N. Brennaman in introducing General Lee spoke of his brilliant record as a soldier, alluded to his popularity as Governor, and when he said "If the people of Newmarket and Shenandoah have their way he will be Virginia's next United States Senator" the audience were wild with demonstrations of approval.

He discussed at length the currency question, and the fallaches of the Populist party. His allusion to the American system of government, and its influence upon other nations was eloquent, and his tribute to Virginia and Virginians was unique and patriotic. Every mention of Grover Cleveland was loudly applauded.

Prize at the World's Fair, Chicago.

Hearing of the claim of another brewery to the award of the first grand prize at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago for the best beer, over all European and American competitors, Mr. F. W. Hoppe, the Richmond agent for the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, at St. Louis, wired his principals for definite information on yesterday.

They promptly wired reply that they certainly held the first prize, and Mr. Hoppe is enabled to state that fact in positive terms. So he has arranged for a grand street parade to-day at noon, to be followed by a reception and entertainment to friends and patrons at the depot of his company, corner Grace and Union streets, from 7 to 19 P. M., where they will be made welcome to celebrate the occasion.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GROCERS ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the Wholesale Grocers Association of Richmond, Va., held Wednesslay evening. November 1st. to take suitable action on the death of Mr. Adolphus Hair, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

The announcement of the death of Adolphus Blair, Esq., which melancholy event took place this morning, is a shock to the community. His death at any time would be a public loss and an occasion of general sorrow. But occurring, as it did, in the prime of life, in the full possession of all his faculties, with terrific suddenness terminating a useful and honorable career, abruptly snapping the closest and tenderest associations, the blow falls with yet greater force. While "bowing with humble submission to the Divine will, this association desires to place on record its high appreciation of him, and its profound sense of the void created by his untimely end. We recognize as the leading traits of his moral constitution a lofty courage, broad human sympathies, generous impulses, fidelity to friendships, uncompromising allegiance to principle, devotion to duty, all strengthened and supported by an unfaitering faith in the eternal truths of the Christian religion. Summing it all up, he was a Christian gentleman, a good and useful citizen. In the sacred home circle those virtues were illustrated first in the faithful son, the affectionate brother, and in maturer years the model husband and father. In all the relations of life he was true and steadfast. As a citizen, in war and in peace, he attested his devotion to his State. When Virginia withdrew from the Union and reclaimed in her sovereignty those grants of power once committed to the general government, and when those great questions which had so long distracted the country were transferred from the halis of Congress to the field of battle, Mr. Blair, then about 30 years of age, was among the first to respond to the call for defence against a ruthless invader, and to offer against a ruthless invader, and to offer his life on the altar of constitutional liberty. On one of those bloody fields around Richmond, now made immortal by the achievements of the Army of Northern Virginia, in sight of the city where his fathers for generations had lived—for his name runs like a golden thread through the Colonial and State history of Virginia—Mr. Blair fell hadly wounded while gallantly fighting at the head of his regiment. When the war closed he accepted in good faith the terms made at Appomattox by his great commander, and the same resolute qualities which had distinguished him as a soldier were now asserted in the everyday struggles of life.

When such a character is summoned from our midst and passes out forever into the great and solemn mystery of eternity, it is fitting that those who were associated with him in the daily pursuits of life should assemble together and bear testimony to the exalted worth which made him honored while living, and take
